Cost effective timber maintenance

A beautiful architecturally designed home in the Sydney suburb of Waverley was in desperate need of maintenance only a few years after being built.

The coating applied at time of build was peeling and flaking off and the timber was being attacked by moisture causing deterioration to the cladding and joinery.

Sydney Timber & Deck Renewals were engaged to completely strip the existing finish off the windows, doors, cladding and even the deck. Removing the deteriorated coating off such detailed joinery was very labour intensive and took several weeks to complete.

Once preparation was complete, all timber surfaces were coated in Cutek CD50 with a Rustic Gold tint.

The timber surfaces which took weeks to sand and chemically strip during restoration, now only require a wash before future applications of Cutek can be applied, saving the homeowner thousands of dollars in ongoing maintenance expenses.
